Application for Herchel Smith Scholarship to Harvard

This form is in Adobe's Portable Document Format (PDF). If you have downloaded it to your computer, you have two options for filling it in — you can just print it out and fill it in by hand, or you can fill it in using your computer, opening it using the free Adobe Acrobat Reader, which you probably already have installed on your computer. The latter is quite convenient, but there is one disadvantage: you can't save the completed form on your computer. (To do that you would need the Adobe Acrobat program, which isn't free.)

If you plan to fill in the form in a single session, that shouldn't be a problem. If you need to save some of the information and return to it later, you may prefer to prepare it in a text editor or word processor, so that you can save it, and to cut and paste it into the form when everything's ready. You will probably wish to print a copy for your records as well as the copy you intend to submit.

Note that material that overflows the boxes will not be printed. Modern versions of Acrobat Reader will display a warning symbol if this happens.

Attach a brief proposal essay (500–700 words). The form of this essay is for you to decide, but the points you should consider addressing include:

- The general study plan for the year at Harvard, including specific courses that you hope to take, and any reasons why study at Harvard would be particularly appropriate.
- How the year at Harvard would contribute to your career development.
- Any other benefits to you of a year at Harvard and any contributions that you would hope to make to the society there.
- Any other reasons why you feel that the Committee should award the scholarship to you rather than to other well-qualified candidates.

See the Herchel Smith Scholarship web page (www.emma.cam.ac.uk/harvard) for further information about the scholarships. Note especially (www.emma.cam.ac.uk/harvard/dates), which gives the closing date for applications.

Applications must reach the Master's Secretary, masterspa@emma.cam.ac.uk, by the closing date, and it is your responsibility to ensure that your referees send their references to reach that address by the same date.
